This is a brief summary of the scoring system for those of you who will be running or participating in the Marvel HeroClix: Days of Future Past Storyline Organized Play event series! Participation in this program will allow retailers to have early access to up to two of the never-before-Clixed Marvel HeroClix: Tri-Sentinel, one as a grand prize, and one to sell or use as additional prizing!

In order to calculate the ultimate winner of the entire program, retailers and/or tournament organizers will be keeping track of players' game wins and losses across the three events. Players earn points per the following:

- A win in the first event is worth 3 points, and a loss is worth 1 point.
- A win in the second event is worth 5 points, and a loss is worth 2 points.
- A win in the third event is worth 7 points, and a loss is worth 3 points.

As you'll see, even if players don't do so hot in the first event they'll have a chance to make a comeback in the second and third events! At the same time, early points will help tip the scales in their favor if they're in the running for the grand prize!

In order to make the tracking of points as easy as possible, we'll be including a point tracking sheet in each of the three kits. If paper tracking isn't your style, we've also created a tremendously handy spreadsheet, which can be found on our website, that calculates points for each player by simply entering how many wins and losses each player has for each event.
